

And The Winner Was...

E ti pareva. L'anno scorso (2013) ha vinto David Bowie, due anni fa Bob Dylan che, questo è un fatto, non sono di primo pelo né, altro fatto, artisti emergenti o sommersi. C'è chi, due anni fa, si è scocciato: ma guarda un po' se deve vincere Dylan che è l'esemplificazione del revivalismo terminale, con baffi da matador?

Detto fatto. Nell'editoriale che invitava a votare il disco (club) dell'anno 2014 lo abbiamo messo in chiaro: «Il nuovo non avanza» e se c'è, è sparpagliato in mille pezzi; analisi non particolarmente rivoluzionaria né, a conti fatti, arrischiata. Nel 2013, in fondo, aveva vinto David Bowie.

Bene; nel 2014 vince (con un distacco di 26 voti sul secondo classificato) Sharon Van Etten, cantautrice di marca confessionale-indie al quarto disco, esordio del 2009. Seguono Damian Rice e War On Drugs (praticamente pari merito, esordi rispettivamente del 2002 e 2008).

Altri 30 voti più in basso: il diluvio. Tutto e il contrario di tutto, con oltre 400 dischi piazzati e il primo dinosauro DOC al 10° posto (gli inossidabili Pink Floyd - meno di metà dei voti di Sharon).

Cosa ci insegna quindi la classifica del disco dell'anno, oltre a non prendere posizioni nette negli editoriali? Niente, ovviamente, ed è questo il bello.

Ci dice, qualcosa, se mai.

Ci dice che abbiamo ascoltato almeno 430 dischi (tanti sono i titoli votati) buoni abbastanza da essere considerati dell'anno (fa più di un album al giorno).

Ci dice che abbiamo ancora voglia di votare il disco dell'anno (che in sé è un segnale di qualcosa).

Ci dice, addirittura, che qualcuno ha votato Vasco Rossi.

E quindi possiamo indignarci.

Perché solo uno ha votato Vasco invece di mille o perché c'è ancora qualcuno nel 2014 che vota Vasco disco dell'anno, scegliete voi.

Noi, del disco dell'anno, abbiamo fatto i conti (e votato, ovviamente); nulla di più.

Il risultato? La Regina di Disco Club 2014 è Sharon Van Etten.

Non ha commentato finora.

Aspettiamo e, nel caso, vi sappiamo dire.
Grazie e buon 2015,

La Redazione
